Project

Managing a growing workforce
across multiple sites

Introduction

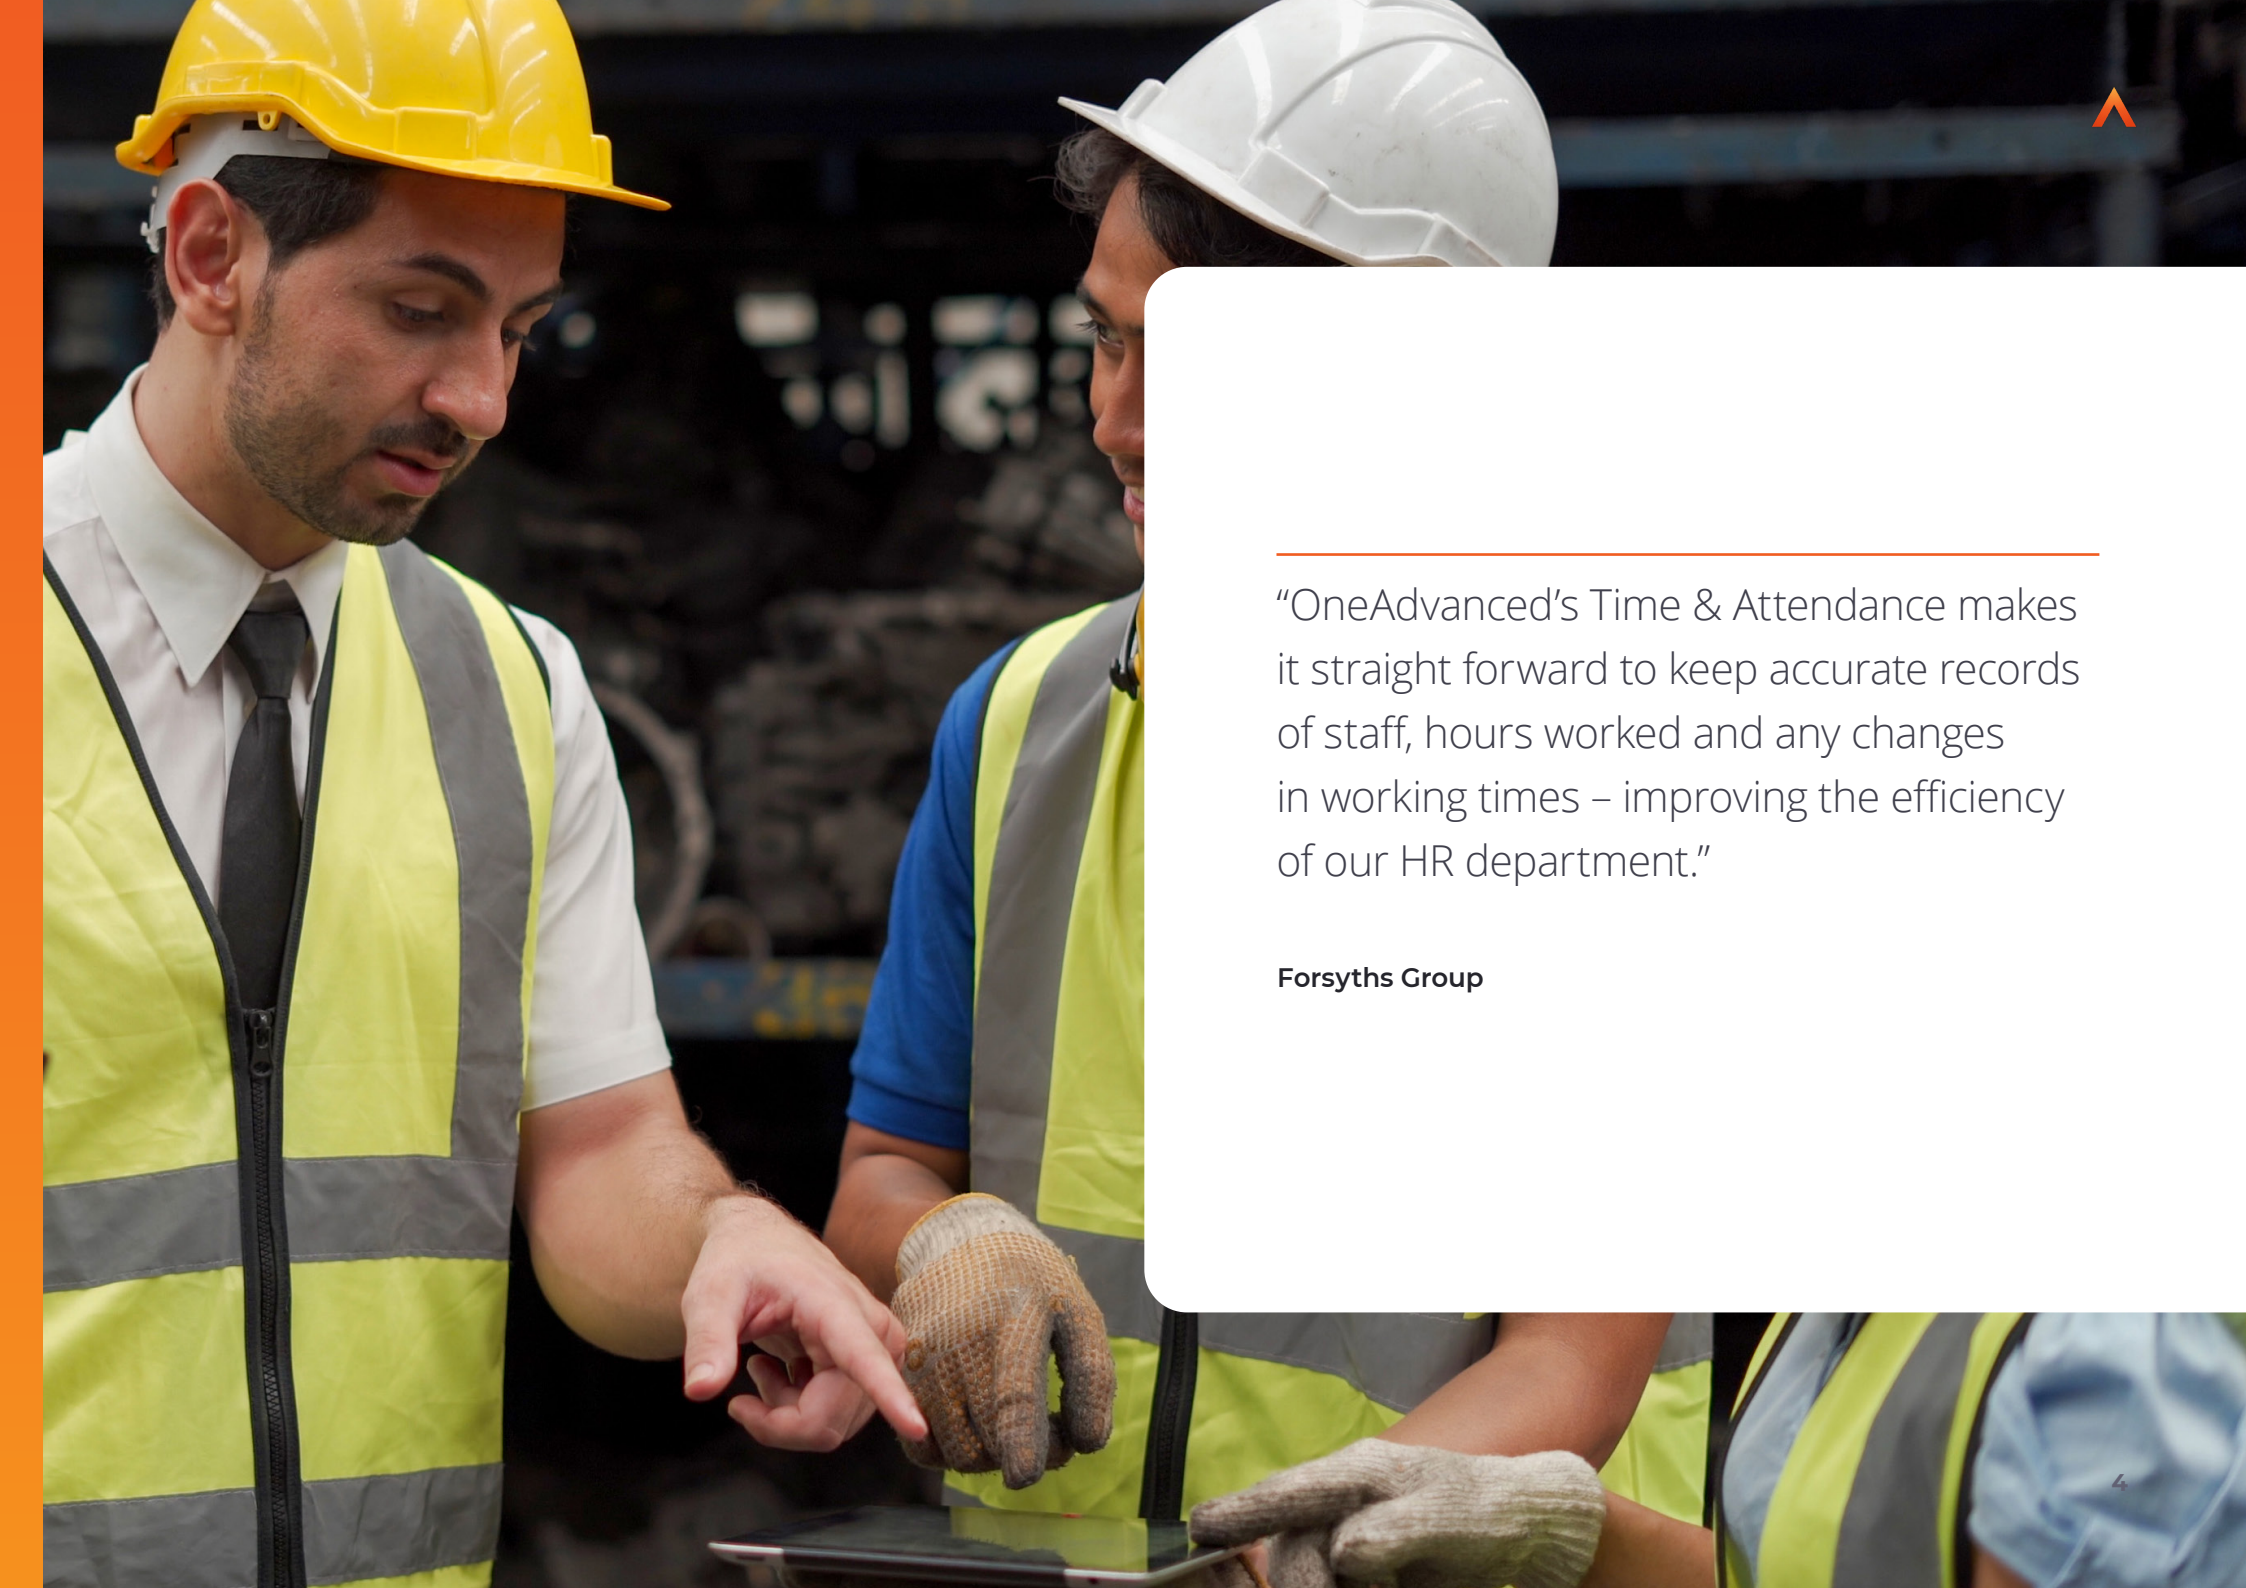

Fabrication firm, the Forsyths Group, needed to track and manage staff movements and shift patterns across three sites in Scotland. OneAdvanced helped them do just that - and more. The Forsyths Group explains how.

Dealing with multi-site operations

The Forsyths Group was established in 1890, and today, we're an international engineering, fabrication and construction company at the heart of Scottish industry. Having employees working across three different sites in Scotland presented us with a number of challenges. We realised that we needed to find a system that could produce real-time information to accurately track staff movements, and handle a number of shift patterns with constantly changing information.

“OneAdvanced’s Time & Attendance makes it straight forward to keep accurate records of staff, hours worked and any changes in working times – improving the efficiency of our HR department.”

OneAdvanced solution

OneAdvanced provided a solution that allows easy clocking-in at all of our sites. Time & Attendance makes it straightforward to keep accurate records of staff, hours worked and any changes in working times – improving the efficiency of our HR department. We were impressed by how quickly workers and management across the Forsyths Group took to the new solution, as well as how little training was required.

“A solution that allows easy clocking-in at all of our sites.”

Ongoing expansion and development

Today, the Forsyths Group is continuing to grow and develop. We offer onshore and offshore products across a whole range of industries, including whisky and spirit distillation, paper production, petrochemicals, food and beverages, pharmaceuticals, fine chemicals, biotechnology, oil and gas, and power and utilities.

We've continued to work with OneAdvanced as part of our expansion, and now have regular user group sessions that keep us up-to-date with software developments and help to identify further opportunities. As a result, we have also begun using OneAdvanced's HR software alongside Time & Attendance to improve our efficiency and productivity.
